

St Kateri Tekakwitha is known as the Lily of the Mohawks. She lived in the 17th century around the St Lawrence River. At age four, she survived a smallpox epidemic that claimed her family and left smallpox scars on her face. When she was 11, she met French Jesuit missionaries for the first time. Despite pressure and opposition from her tribe and family, she converted to Christianity. She eventually fled persecution from her tribe and lived with Jesuit missionaries and other Native Americans who had converted to Christianity. She died of illness at age 24; her last words were "Jesus, Mary, I love you." Eyewitnesses reported that minutes after her death, her smallpox scars disappeared, and her face turned clear and beautiful.

In a significant milestone, Kateri Tekakwitha was canonized in 2012, becoming the first Native American saint. The Catholic Church celebrates her on July 14 every year, and many venerate her as the patron saint of ecology. Her life and devotion to the Catholic Faith show that the Gospel is meant for all, and indigenous people are no exception.

Thank you for helping KNOM carry on St Kateri's legacy and broadcast Christ's message to the people of Western Alaska. This important work would be impossible without your support. St Kateri Tekakwitha, Lily of the Mohawks, pray for us!

Who Can be Saved? Will heaven be full of only Catholics? Or maybe just Christians? Can anyone else be saved? First, the Church has always taught that faith in Jesus Christ and in the One who sent Him is necessary for salvation. What about people who have never heard the Gospel? Or those who never understood it? Can they get to heaven? The answer is only God knows. Here's what the Catechism of the Catholic Church says in paragraph 1260: "Since Christ died for all, and since all men are in fact called to one and the same destiny, which is divine, we must hold that the Holy Spirit offers to all the possibility of being made partakers, in a way known to God, of the Paschal mystery. Every man who is ignorant of the Gospel of Christ and of his Church but seeks the truth and does the will of God in accordance with his understanding of it, can be saved." So, while the Church is tasked with spreading and teaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ and salvation through Him, God alone is the judge of souls.
